The Full Text of the Law as Enacted, with Copious Annotations.

SECOND AND REVISED EDITION.

By JOHN J. CRAWFORD, of the New York Bar.
By whom the Statute was drawn.

Mr. Crawford's experience as draftsman of the Act gives him a great advantage over all other annotators of the statute.

The annotations are not merely a digest and compilation of cases, but indicate the decisions and other sources from which the various provisions of the statute were drawn. These annotations were all prepared by Mr. Crawford himself, and many of them are his original notes to the draft of the Act submitted to the Conference of Commissioners on Uniformity of Laws. They will be found an invaluable aid to an intelligent understanding of the statute.

A specially important feature is that the notes point out the changes which have been made in the law.

In this SECOND EDITION the notes have been amplified, and citations to the decisions in all the states wherein the law has been enacted have been added.

This edition also contains citations to all the reported cases which have arisen under the Act.

The "Negotiable Instruments Law," covers the entire subject of Negotiable Instruments, and supersedes all the former law on the subject whether case or statutory.

Crawford's Annotated Negotiable Instruments Law, 2d Edition, is a neat octavo volume, bound in law canvass. Price $2.50 net, but sent by mail or express, prepaid, on receipt of the amount.

MODERN ELOQUENCE

THOMAS B. REED, Editor in Chief

What is the secret of a great lawyer's power?

Is it learning in the Law? Is it commanding presence? Charming personality? Many and influential friends? Political affiliations?

The unthinking layman might answer "yes," but the lawyer knows that these are not, to begin with, essentials. He knows a score of instances where most, if not all, of these qualifications were absent, until, by sheer force of innate greatness, they were required. He knows that, in law as in every relation and responsibility in life, it is the little things and the alertness to see and take advantage of them that oftenest turns the tide of a great case, and changes a seemingly inevitable defeat into a great victory.

The lawyer who is ever ready with a quotation, a precedent, a simile, or a metaphor, who weaves into the fabric of his argument brilliant flowers of wit, with the sombre leaves and ashes of pathos; the one who is human because he feels humanity in all its intensity, and communicates his feelings to his hearers—the man of the world in the deep, broad, fullest sense; the man who has had inspiring contact with great minds, and has come to acquire the spirit of their inspiration and achievement; the man whose own mind is prepared for instant and true action through familiarity with great minds on great questions—he it is who has in him the secret—if it be a secret—of success.

Nowhere, in the compass of one set of books—the result of the editorial labors of one set of men of affairs—is there so much food for thought and so much inspiration as in Modern Eloquence, a library of the best after-dinner speeches, classic and popular lectures, famous addresses, reminiscence, anecdotes, repartee, story, and illustration.

Modern Eloquence is an assemblage of gems of expressed thought that have charmed the brightest intellects of this the greatest of centuries; lectures that have thrilled vast intellectual assemblies in the centres of thought; after-dinner speeches that have broadened the human heart and mind; eulogies that have melted prejudice, banished ill-feeling, made memories sacred; addresses stimulative of thought, desire, and ambition; brilliant bits of humor, wit, and repartee; stories fixing local color and human pathos and interest as if on canvas. It is the essence of all noteworthy speech of a hundred years—itself the expression of all noteworthy action. Prefixed to the several volumes are introductory articles—"The Influence and History of Oratory," by Mr. Reed; "The History of After-Dinner Speaking," by Prof. Sears, etc. Following these brilliant prefaces are contributions from mind and pen of men who have made the English-speaking people first in literature, arts, and sciences, and who have taught ideal civic life; men who have directed from the executive chair, the cabinet board, the pulpit, the sanctum, the bench, the stage, the rostrum, or the printed page.

The Law of Inter-corporate Relations

By JUDGE WALTER C. NOYES, of the Connecticut Court of Common Pleas.

This book, of special importance this year, treats

1st. CONSOLIDATION. The Union of Stockholders, properties and franchises of several corporations in a single corporation.

2d. SALES. The absolute transfer of the franchises and property of one corporation to another.

3d. LEASE. The transfer for stated payments of the franchises and property of one corporation to another in perpetuity or for a term of years.

4th. CORPORATE STOCKHOLDING OR CONTROL. The acquisition of one corporation of shares of the capital stock of another.

5th. COMBINATION. The co-operation of several corporations to accomplish a given purpose.

This is the first attempt to treat fully Corporate Sales, Leases and Stockholding or Control.

All Federal and State Anti-Trust Statutes are cited and printed in the notes, which are very full and exhaustive and refer to cases down to July 15, 1902.

Two Books of Unusual Importance.

Washburn on Real Property.

Sixth Edition, Edited by JOHN WURTS, Professor of Real Property Law at Yale.

Hon. SIMEON E. BALDWIN'S opinion of "Washburn on Real Property," in Yale Law Journal, May, 1902.

"Governor Washburn was the first to set in order the land law of the United States, and forty years of daily use by the American bar have made his work a classic. Of the successive editions none have undergone so thorough a recension as that which has now come from the careful hands of Professor WURTS. There were many points as to which it had become necessary, from the mere development of our jurisprudence in the ordinary course of decision, to recast statements as well as to add or omit. As to others, similar changes were called for, to secure greater clearness of expression or exactness of definition. Professor WURTS has exercised good judgment both in what he has done and what he has refrained from doing."

Frost on Guaranty Insurance.

By THOMAS GOLD FROST, of the New York Bar.

Hon. JOHN F. DILLON, Author of "Municipal Corporations," says:

"Mr. FROST'S Treatise on Guaranty Insurance, comprising all forms of compensated suretyship, an important subject which has had such a great development during the past twenty-five years, is marked by study and adequate research, and is a satisfactory and comprehensive presentation of the law down to the present date. It is a welcome addition to necessary legal literature."

Hon. U. M. ROSE, of Little Rock, Ark., says:

"I have read with interest and profit Mr. FROST'S work on Guaranty Insurance. Unless I am mistaken, it will rank along with the best of our text-books. It is scholarly, scientific, and thorough, without being redundant, showing the best results of application, study and labor.

A fourth edition of "Morse on Banks and Banking" is being prepared by Frank Parsons, Esq., who edited and revised the third edition of this authority on banking law. Little, Brown, & Company, Boston, are the publishers.

NEW EDITION 1902 NOW READY

ABBOTT'S
CRIMINAL TRIAL BRIEF

800 PAGES $4.50 DELIVERED

This is the third of the Hon. Austin Abbot's "TRIAL BRIEF" series, which our editors have brought down to date, and adapted for use in all the states. We have had to print 13,656 copies of CIVIL TRIAL BRIEF (published Nov., 1900) and BRIEF ON THE FACTS (published Oct., 1901) to supply the demand. They each sell for $4.50 delivered.

Like the others, this book was designed simply as a trial hand-book. It gives essential information with regard to the rights, privileges and immunities of the accused. It gives all essential information for counsel in the conduct of a criminal trial, from arraignment to sentence or discharge.

It gives authorities from every state—not all authorities, but the leading cases on each proposition, those you would cite in a brief or in the course of a trial. It was intended to make this book as valuable to the trial lawyer as possible, and to that end no expense was spared. Nearly 10,000 cases are cited, and this work is twice the size of the original.

No lawyer should be without these books, as they give him up-to-date information on just the points that are likely to be needed at once, in an emergency. In the library of any trial lawyer they will be used daily.

Though much the largest book of the series, CRIMINAL TRIAL BRIEF is delivered at the same price, $4.50.
